Wish turkeys were as cheap a Thanksgiving proclamation.

Hash, brothers, hash with care, hash for a week most everywhere.

"Heads you win", said the turkey as his neck is stretched on the block.

Well, just be thankful you are not a Turk-American, European or Asiatic.

Follow the crowd to Roman's Opera House—A good show always awaits you.

The turkey drumstick used to be scorned, now we wish it was a quadruped.

Little Mary Sunshine was shown by the Womans Club in Danville and pronounced first-class.

Miss Billie Burke the international favorite, in "Gloria's Romance" at Roman's Opera House each Friday.

Lost, a tan leather pocket book with three ten dollar bills. Reward if returned to John Walters at Post office.

HOG KILLING; Am well prepared to kill your hogs and deliver same. Satisfaction guaranteed and price only 50 cents each. Hayden Leavell, It-pd.

The leading role in "Little Mary Sunshine" which will be seen at the Rex, Thursday night is played by the youngest actress on the movie stage.

The evolution of Thanksgiving documents from George Washington's quill pen proclamation to President Wilson's call to thankfulness, written by himself on a typewriter, is interesting. Suffice it to say all have found much to be thankful for, even when our nation was scourged with war Lincoln, in the most gentle and pathetic words, set aside a day to pray for peace, and thank for blessings.

FOR SALE.

Kimball piano, mahogany case, excellent tone and is as good as new. For information call this office.

PAYING INDUSTRY.

Mrs. John Blanks of Hubble, sold to Bailey and Moss, 57 turkeys that brought her $137.20. We know of no better way by which the house-wife may make her "pin money."

HOG KILLING TIME.

Sam Johnson tells us he is having a hog killing time at his Sanitary Slaughter House on Danville street. He will also render your lard and grind your sausage, cheaper than you can do it at your home. Phone 354-G. He delivers the goods after the killing.

WITH FARMERS HOME.

Mr. E. B. Ray, left for Lexington last Monday where he again assumes his old position with the Farmers Home Tobacco Warehouse, of that city. Lige says to tell the boys he will be prepared to take care of his Garrard county friends who send their tobacco to his house and that they will see the advertisement of same in the next issue of the Central Record.

GOOSE SUPPER A SUCCESS.

From a financial, social and culinary standpoint the goose supper was a "squaking" success. The "Circle Girls" worked hard but felt repaid by clearing over $50. and pleasing their many patrons. The money goes toward supporting a co-worker in India and other charitable purposes. By giving value, and over value for 50 cents the circle girls have worked up a large trade, everyone wanting to come to their suppers.

GOOD MUSIC AT OPERA HOUSE.

Mr. W. J. Romans, manager of the Opera House has engaged for his patrons and music-lovers of Lancaster, the services of Mr. Alvin Thompson, of Hot Springs, Ark., as violinist and Mr. A. D. Kirk, of this city, as pianist. These excellent musicians are presenting, each night a program of both classical and popular music which together with the high class pictures that are being shown, is being enjoyed by large audiences. Mr. Romans presents Billie Burke in "Gloria's Romance" Friday night.

SELF DEFENSE

PLEA OF ASBIE SEBASTIAN FOR KILLING ZACK SIMPSON LAST JUNE.

The jury in the case of the Commonwealth against Asbie Sebastian for killing Zack Simpson last June was finally secured after the regular panel had been exhausted, with only five of its members accepted, about seventy-five having been summoned from the lower end of the county yesterday afternoon. Including the character witnesses, there will be about fifty in all, and the case will probably not be finished until Friday, as court will adjourn over one day on account of Thanksgiving. Indications are that the case will be a hard fought one, as able council has been employed on each side and every inch of the ground is being fought by the attorneys represented. Judge L. L. Walker and J. E. Robinson are defending Sebastian and the Commonwealth is being looked after by Emmet Puryear, G. C. Walker and J. I. Hamilton. In a few minutes talk Mr. Puryear stated the case for the Commonwealth and said from the fact that the defendant Sebastian, having failed to testify on the examining trial, his statement would naturally be short. Commonwealth claims that Sebastian was drunk and that he entertained malice against Simpson for the killing of a mule and any claim that the defendant would make that his life was in danger, would be false.

Mr. Robinson consumed nearly an hour in stating the case for the defendant and several times his remarks were objected to by Mr. Puryear, until they seemed to irritate the speaker, which caused the court to threaten a fine if the remarks did not cease. Mr. Robinson stated that it would be clearly shown by the evidence that Mr. Sebastian was plainly acting in self defense when he shot Simpson and that the reason and only reason that Sebastian did not testify on the examining trial, was because he was physically unable to do so on account of the wounds inflicted by the sons of Simpson at the time of the shooting, and who will be the main witnesses for the Commonwealth in the case. He stated that it would be proven that the sons were in the conflict and were approaching Sebastian in a threatening manner and that Simpson had called to the boys, "to come on and let's kill the s--of-a-b" and that all three started toward Sebastian in a threatening manner with rocks and it was at that time that Sebastian believing his life was in danger, fire the shot that was fatal to Simpson and almost at the same time he was struck in the head by one of the boys, while the other grabbed the gun from the defendant and beat him into insensibility, by breaking it over Sebastian's head. A map of the grounds where the difficulty took place was shown the jury by Mr. Robinson, that they may be better acquainted with the local surroundings in the tobacco patch where it seems that all the conversations of the day had taken place that led up to the shooting. Sebastian will claim that he was carrying the gun to kill a young rabbit for Mrs. Wilson, who was the wife of his tenant and had been quite sick for several days, and that when he came up to Simpson in the tobacco patch after a few casual remarks Simpson said, "Asbie, your son Clifton says, that Letcher (Simpson's son) killed your dog," to which Sebastian replied, "I don't know anything about that, but you have been accused of killing my mule," at which time Sebastian claims that Simpson called to the boys to come on.

On account of the prominence of both families and the large connection throughout the county the court house is filled with interested spectators and every ear is alert to catch the testimony of each witness. As we go to press one of the sons of Simpson is on the stand.

8,000 TURKEYS

Handled By Local Dealers Here. Mostly Shipped To Boston Market.

The local dealers, Bailey and Moss and H. B. Northcott, have handled for the Thanksgiving market approximately 8,000 turkeys averaging each 12 pounds, at an average cost of 21 cents a pound or a total of 96,000 pounds, bringing the total sum in dollars up to near about $20,000. Quite a number of these turkeys were shipped in from Virginia, but practically all were slaughtered here by these local dealers. Several hundred pickers have been employed for the past two weeks and they are given five cents for each turkey picked. Some of them have become so proficient and rapid as to make as high as $4. a day. The negro women are by far the most experts in this line and this industry has been quite a boon to them during the turkey picking season.

HEAT Your House With ONE Register

As ONE Sun Heats the Entire Earth—So ONE Register Heats Your Entire House

The Caloric way is Nature's way—most sensible, economical and healthful. No unsightly, expensive pipes and flues to cause fire danger, waste heat and clutter the cellar. The absence of pipes prevents overheating the cellar, hence produce is not spoiled. Its great heat radiation will save you at least 35% of your fuel.

PIPELESS CALORIC FURNACE

The Original Patented Pipeless Furnace

There are three reasons for this big saving. 1st, The warm air reaches your rooms by nature's direct method of circulation and there are no pipes to absorb or resist the heat. 2nd, Our double ribbed firepot and specially patented combustion chamber produce perfect combustion, thus insuring thorough burning of the fuel and a much greater heating surface. 3rd, Our specially patented triple casing, insulated with two air spaces, prevents any heat from radiating into the basement. This is the only successful, patented, one-register furnace and no other furnace can claim these three big features. This means that you get all the heat from your fuel.

Sold Under Guarantee

Put the Caloric Pipeless Furnace in your house and give it a fair trial. Its successful operation is guaranteed and we'll make right any defect in material or workmanship. The Caloric firepot is guaranteed for five years by us and by the manufacturer, The Monitor Stove & Range Co., Cincinnati, O. See this furnace and get FREE book.

ROAST BEEF AND BROWN GRAVY

AS GOOD AS TURKEY AND DRESSING.

You may rave, if you will about turkey and dressing. You may worship it still as an edible blessing. But for me, mashed potatoes, all creamy and wavy. A cut of roast beef and a lot of brown gravy.

Give me beef, I repeat and my Thanksgiving's merry, And with a taunt from the saucy cranberry. I will eat with a relish to cause admiration, Never thinking at all of the "bird of the nation"

I suppose some may say it is treason, To renounce the great fowl of the Thanksgiving season, But the juicy roast beef, I would have you remember, Is as good in November as it is in December.

It's an all time friend, and the ones who stick to it, Will never have cause to regret or to rue it, While the wisdom of feasting on turkey I question, Since it often is known to produce indigestion.

So I'll pass the proud turkey with all my good wishes, And go to Davidson & Tomlinson for delectable dishes, Such as the old reliable bean of the navy, A cut of Roast Beef and a lot of brown gray.

Get your Thanksgiving dinner at Davidson & Tomlinson, and Let friend Wilkerson cut you that choice roost of Beef.

DAIRY and CREAMERY

EVIL OF MIXING BREEDS.

Cows Produced by This Method Are Always of Scrub Character.

Permit me to suggest that the advice to breed cows to pure bred sires only needs to be supplemented always with the further recommendation to breed to males of the same breed. writes a correspondent of Hoard's Dairyman. The writer has observed the breeding of cows in the vicinity

Dairy cleanliness demands, first of all, that the milk be drawn from the cow with as little dirt in it as possible. Cows should be regularly groomed with brush and curry comb and the under and adjacent parts wiped with a damp cloth just before milking. This procedure will go far toward clean milk.

where he lives for more than half a century, and during all of that time pure bred bulls of different breeds have been used very largely, the use of scrubs being only exceptional. Yet the result is a general lot of scrubs of all sorts and descriptions that, taken as a whole, are in no respect ahead of the native cows kept in our boyhood days.

A few men have adhered strictly to a single breed and have built up herds, mostly of grades, that are uniform in appearance and are profitable and a credit to their owners, but the general run are as indicated. The difference in value is marked as well. At auctions these high grades sell for $75 to $85, while cows of no particular breed sell for $50 to $60.

The hereditary tendency in breeding, it is understood, is to revert to the original type, and the original type in cows was an animal that produced milk sufficient only to rear the calf to the age of six or eight months and then go dry the rest of the year. By a long course of wise and careful selection the various breeds of cows have been built up from such an animal as that, and when an attempt is made to break away from any of these lines of selection the tendency is a reversion to that original cow. If any one doubts this just let him look around at the nondescript breed of cows that have resulted from this manner of crossing and he will find abundant confirmation of this fact.

If a man starts out and breeds first to a Holstein, for instance, in order to gain quantity of milk, and then to a Jersey for richness, and then to a Shorthorn for size and beef qualities, and then to some other sire because it is most convenient, as is the thought in most instances in breeding, the outcome is likely to be a lottery, the character of which nobody can guess. Such a course of breeding is breaking into all lines of heredity, any of which may crop out, and no sort of uniformity of form or color or productiveness may be expected. These are the ideas generally followed in breeding cows and the results anybody can see by simply looking around him.

Cottonseed Meal For Cows.

Cottonseed meal is one of the cheapest sources of protein supply for dairy cows. Only meal that is in good condition should be used in a grain mixture. Since the meal itself is a very rich concentrate, the amount of cottonseed meal fed daily should ordinarily not exceed three pounds and should be used as one of several feeds in a grain mixture. The character of the grain mixture that should be fed will depend somewhat on the nature of the roughages being used.—R. S. Hulce, Dairy Department, University of Illinois.

Dairying Profitable.

Dairying is a satisfactory business because it furnishes dependable returns. A man with small capital can invest his money in a dairy cow and begin immediately to realize on the investment, points out O. E. Reed, professor of dairy husbandry in the Kansas State Agricultural college. Prices of milk and butter fat are never subject to any great fluctuation. They are more steady and uniform than those of many other farm commodities.

DESTRUCTIVE TERMITES.

Preventive Measures Against These Pests, Known Also as "White Ants." [Prepared by United States department of agriculture.]

Serious damage to woodwork and stored materials about buildings may be caused by peculiar insects known as termites, or white ants, without the knowledge of occupants. These insects work in the dark interior of the substances attacked, and the damage which they inflict is, therefore, not apparent. Methods of combating the pests are explained in farmers' bulletin 750, recently issued by the United States department of agriculture.

The insects, which are not ants and only superficially resemble them, primarily attack woodwork and cause greatest damage by weakening or destroying portions of buildings and other wooden structures in contact with the ground. On recently cleared land or any other soil containing decaying wood, however, they may prove destructive to growing plants. The insects also eat into numerous articles stored on damp wooden shelves or under conditions otherwise attractive to them. Articles attacked in this way include books, documents, objects made of pasteboard or wood pulp, cloth, clothing, leather products and food substances. Termites live in colonies in dead stumps or in other decaying wood and enter the woodwork of buildings underground where timber is in contact with the soil or through cracks in concrete. They often destroy large portions of the interior of pillars and other wooden members without giving any indication of their presence.

When termites are found to be present it is usually through noticing the annual emergence of the flying members of the colony at swarming time in the spring. The place of emergence should be noted, as this indicates the approximate location of the infested timbers. The presence of small branching tubes of earth on stone or metal, serving as passageways to wood, may be another indication that termites are at work in a building.

Either preventive or combative measures may be taken against the invasions of termites. In all new building operations care should be taken that no untreated timber is in contact with the ground or is set in wet concrete. The latter condition is not a protection, since the concrete often cracks, and the insects may gain entrance through the crevices. If wood must be placed in contact with the earth, only timber treated with some such substance as coal tar creosote should be used. Celar floors of concrete should join the walls in a curve to guard against cracks. If buildings are constructed without cellars the wooden flooring should be raised well above the ground.

If termites are discovered in wood work it will be necessary usually to remove the damaged timbers and replace them by stone or brick work or treated wood. The ground at the approximate entrance passage of the insects and any earth tubes discovered should be drenched with kerosene oil. Infested timbers also may be drenched with the oil.

Termites are especially likely to attack the wood of greenhouses, where warmth and moisture are the rule. Steps similar to those described for other buildings should be adopted to rid infested greenhouses of the insects. Supports for flower benches may be sawed off near the ground and made to rest on bricks or stone. If the termites are in the soil they may be killed in many instances by applications of carbon bisulphide. Plants may be sprayed effectively with a 5 per cent solution of kerosene emulsion. In order to prevent attacks by termites on living trees the tree surgery method of treating scars and dead limbs and spots is recommended.

Nursery stock may be attacked by termites if planted on recently cleared land. Such locations therefore should be avoided. Care should be taken not to permit the roots of the young trees to dry out before planting, as such weakened stock is liable to attack. Damage to field crops by termites may be prevented by late fall plowing and crop rotation.

We Will Open Our Warehouses to Receive Tobacco

November 26th, 1916

and the first sale will occur on MONDAY, DECEMBER 4th.

We will continue auction sales every day, excepting Saturday and holidays from that date on.

You can rest assured that Danville will be the highest market in this section, as we are the closest market to the largest re-drying and manufacturing plants in the world.

Our accommodations for both man and beast are as good as the best. The loose leaf floor plan is the best and only way of marketing tobacco, to insure the highest dollar to the grower. These facts have been demonstrated in Virginia, North and South Carolina, where they have been selling tobacco on this plan for the past fifty years.

Drive your wagon to the Danville market. You will always find some one to attend to your wants, and welcome you. During the sale we will do our very best to get you the highest market price for your tobacco.

All the large factory buyers will be on hand on the first day of sale. We have experienced men in all departments to look after your interest, including two of the finest auctioneers in this or any other State.

The warehouses do not buy tobacco except on sale at auction. We do a strictly commission business. Free stables and no rejection fee.

Appreciating your past patronage, we hope you will see your way clear to bring us your tobacco, guaranteeing you the highest market prices, absolutely accurate weights and an all around square deal.

You are cordially invited to attend our opening sale, Dec 4th

POVERTY

One-crop farming certainly leads to poverty sooner or later. You must learn diversified farming. Do not think because you have tobacco barns, that they must be filled with tobacco each year, thereby cultivating parts of your land in this crop when the condition of the soil is not suited. Some young cattle or sheep will use that barn to profit. Stock raising, one year with another, is given up to be the sure plan to success.

Use our lumber yard in changing your building to convenient stock barns, sell from your land only the fat produced and see your farm improve in fertility. Use a little Orchard Grass in seeding and see if we know what we are talking about.

FEED A MIXED RATION AND SEE IF THE STOCK DO NOT THRIVE BETTER WITH LESS FEED, THAN A ONE FEED RATION.

We used to think that a farmer who worked hard was a success, but the day has come when the farmer who does not work brain with the muscle is a failure.

We carry a line of farmers needs that are sold at the right price. Our stock of Lumber, Lime, Brick, Sand, Cement, Screenings, Doors, Windows, Fence Posts, Furniture, Feed Field Seeds, Builders Hardware, Fire Brick, Backs, Grates and Mantles are bound to please you.

We will add, in due time, some useful articles for your Xmas Gifts and want you to call and look them over.

RICHMOND, KY., NOVEMBER 22nd, 1916.

To The Tobacco Growers of Garrard and Adjoining Counties:

We wish to announce we will open our warehouse at Richmond for the receipt of tobacco on Friday, December 1st.

First Sale To Be Held Monday, December 4th, 1916. Daily sales from this date.

We will have representatives on our market from R. J. Reynolds & Co., Liggett & Myers, American Tobacco Co., J. P. Taylor & Co., W. L. Petty, A. L. Zeigler & Co., in fact all of the buying interest of the tobacco business will be represented. Don't forget the fact we made one of the largest averages in the State last season.

Our house is under the same management since organization, and remember we were the Pioneers. We feel our experience in the business has better qualified us to get top notch prices for your tobacco and to give you prompt and reliable service. We will do our level best for you at all times.

Have ample free stall room for your teams. Polite and courteous treatment to all. We play no favorites. A satisfied customer is our best asset. The outlook for good prices is flattering.

We insist that you handle and grade your crop carefully as you well know mixed and badly handled tobacco is neglected by the buyers.

We thank you for the very liberal patronage we have received in the past and solicit a continuance of same.

Very truly yours,

MISS MANSFIELD

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

Barradale was not able to get a vacation till October. On the 10th he went to a house a mile distant from a village, a house where they took summer boarders. The only other person there was a girl of nineteen. Who she was did not appear. She did not reside there regularly. She spent most of the day in her room, but what she did there was not made known to Barradale.

One morning when Barradale started out for his accustomed morning walk his landlady, Mrs. Stetson, asked him if he happened to go by the postoffice to bring the mail, adding that he was to give any letters that might come to her and no one else. Barradale called for the mail and noticed that it consisted of two letters, both for Miss Mabel Mansfield. They were addressed in masculine handwriting. Miss Mansfield was the young lady boarder. Barradale delivered the letters to Mrs. Stetson and thought no more about the matter.

Having nothing else to do, Barradale took long walks, stopping for long rests—that is, when the retreating summer got the better of the coming autumn and it was warm enough to sit still. On several occasions he passed the postoffice and always asked for the mail. There was usually a letter for Miss Mansfield, sometimes addressed in a woman's, sometimes in a man's handwriting. Miss Mansfield, weather permitting, took a walk in the afternoon. One afternoon, when Barradale had the mail in his pocket, he met her. Taking out the letters, he selected one for her, gave it to her and passed on. When he handed the other letters to Mrs. Stetson he mentioned that he had given one to Miss Mansfield. Mrs. Stetson frowned, but said nothing. The next day she told him that he need not trouble himself about the mail; she would get it herself. After that when he called at the postoffice he was given his own mail and no more.

There was no one in the house to interest Barradale except Miss Mansfield, and he longed to avail himself of her companionship. He noticed, however, that whenever he attempted to do so Mrs. Stetson thrust herself upon them. The consequence was that Barradale, noticing that Miss Mansfield walked in the afternoon, contrived to meet her and walk with her.

At first she demurred, saying that he was a stranger to her, and she was not used to the society of men. Girls should be very careful with whom they associate. However, she gradually thawed, and her prudence did not prevent her from making appointments to meet him without the range of Mrs. Stetson's watchful eye.

Put a young man and a young woman under the same roof with no other associates, and the result is usually the same. When Barradale went home he had received Miss Mansfield's permission to call upon her mother—she had no father—who lived in the same city as himself, to ask for her hand. The evening after his arrival he made the call. The house was a stone front, and a dignified elderly lady received him.

"Mrs. Mansfield?" he asked. "I am Mrs. Mansfield."

"Mrs. Mansfield, I have been spending a month in the country, where I have met your daughter."

At this the lady became all attention.

"I found her a charming girl," continued Barradale—"indeed, so charming that I fell in love with her."

"Were you at Mrs. Stetson's?" asked the lady sharply.

"I was."

"Mrs. Stetson assured me that her summer boarders had all returned to the city," snapped the lady.

Barradale was about to proceed with his application when Mrs. Mansfield broke in, talking partly to herself and partly to him.

"What shall I do with her? She's incorrigible. She got all the boys in the high school in love with her, and I packed her off to college to get her away from them. She had barely entered before she was expelled for breaking the rules. I managed to have the expulsion exchanged to suspension and rusticated her under the care of Mrs. Stetson. Mrs. Stetson has written me that Mabel has been getting letters from her lovers despite the fact that Mrs. Stetson has endeavored to intercept them. Did Mabel send you to me to ask for her?"

"She did."

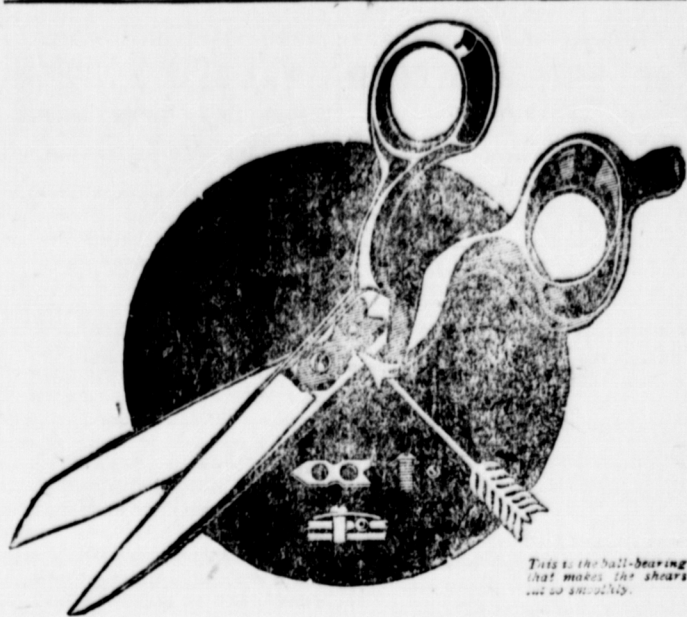

"You are the seventh person she has sent to me to ask for her in the past six months. If I had known that a young man had gone to the same house in the country as she I would have warned him. Mrs. Stetson is very much to blame."

"No harm done, I assure you, Mrs. Mansfield," replied Barradale, outwardly unruffled. "I'm just of an age to cut my wisdom teeth. The experience will surely be of service to me."

"I wish you'd take her off my hands," said the lady ruefully. "The others have been boys; you are a man and might be able to control her."

"Thank you very much. Just at present I don't feel like relieving you, but when a man is once inoculated by a Cupid's arrow it's difficult to get the poison out of his system. Meanwhile I'll play her own game with her. I'll let her severely alone for awhile."

It so happened that Miss Mansfield had played the game once too often. She is now Mrs. Barradale.

They are the ball-bearing shears that make the shears cut so easily.

Write for these shears!

For a very trifling cost you can get these Genuine Ball-bearing seven inch Tension Shears.

They are made from selected cutlery material with hardened and keen-cutting edge, and carefully ground.

THANKSGIVING.

From the time of the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers, Americans have been accustomed to set aside one day in the year wherein to review the past year take stock of the dealings of Providence with us a people.

What was at first the spontaneous expression of grateful hearts soon became a custom, and as the years spread on this custom became fixed until today it assumes the sacredness of a permanent institution.

This season is again with us Thursday. The fruits of the broad acres of our fair domain have been garnered in. The warehouses and granaries are fairly bursting with their contents and prosperity sets a guest at almost every fireside.

Our President and the governors of the various states have designated the day on which the people shall express to a bountiful Creator their gratitude for these blessings.

And to the many positive and material blessings which have been ours, there is added on this occasion the especial blessing that we as a people have escaped the madness that has fallen as a blight upon our neighbors and kinsmen across the waters. The magnitude of that blessing we can not at this time begin to estimate.

But while we have these palpable blessings for which to be thankful, we have other things for which to express our gratitude, and these antedate and underlie our present happiness and prosperity, our peace and safety. We have to be thankful that back in the days when our nation was being born, a land of heroes, than whom the world has never produced greater, had impressed upon their hearts to lay the foundations of that nation upon the only possible true and lasting base—the Fatherhood of an omnipotent God and the brotherhood of man.

And we have to be thankful that all down the years since that time there have been heroic souls—worthy sons of noble sires—who have never ceased to call to us with clarion voice to watch and preserve the old landmarks, to plant our feet upon the everlasting rock and stand firm.

And over and above all else, we have to be thankful that a merciful God has so moulded the hearts and lives of the people of this nation that we are enabled to look above and beyond and see for ourselves the great principles of eternal truth and justice that must ultimately rule the whole earth: that we are enabled to grasp the truth that an injury to ourselves, and that a kindness to our fellows calls down a benediction upon our heads.

So that the one supreme blessing for which we should at this season return thanks, is the fact that our God has enabled us as people to know and do the RIGHT.

And let our prayer be, that it may ever be thus with this people.

WILL MEAN A FORTUNE

If Hemp Break Machine Invented By Local Men Makes Good.

Hemp breaking machines are becoming such an important item of the equipment of every farmer who raises hemp in Lincoln county that two of Lincoln county's most successful young men have invented and patented a hemp breaking machine of their own. They are Sam Holtzclaw and his brother, Wesley Holtzclaw, who this week received patents, on a breaking machine they have been working on for some time. They applied for patents last April and are greatly pleased at securing the papers protecting them in their invention, which, they say, tests have proven to be superior to anything on the market, and a successful hemp breaking machine has so far been one of the long-sought-for goals of all inventors.

Josh B. Jones, one of the biggest hemp growers in this section of the state, this week got in from Winchester, a Skinner hemp breaking machine. This machine is also a new invention. It is operated by a gasoline engine, and breaks on each side. The Holtzclaw boys say that if the Skinner machine is a success theirs will be a great deal more so for they say their machine will break six times as much hemp in a given time as the Skinner machine. If their machine will do what they believe it will and it will be given exhaustive tests this season, these well-known young men have a fortune easily in their grasp.—Interior Journal.

BEST IN YEARS

Commissioner Cohen Declares Kentucky
Never Had A Better Corn Crop.

Mat S. Cohen, Commissioner of Agriculture, has issued the crop report for November which will be the last report issued until May. The department was a few days late in issuing the report in order that the farmers might get a good idea of the yield of the crop and tobacco crops.

Taken as a whole, Commissioner Cohen says that the report indicates that the farmers are in a prosperous condition with their granaries and barns well filled and live stock in a thrifty condition. The weather has been in season for the housing of the late crops, so that farm work is generally reported to be in good shape for the winter.

The report follows:
"The final estimate on the yield of the corn crop in Kentucky is twenty-eight bushels per acre, which is 1.8 bushels less than the preliminary estimate, but is the same average as last year. In different sections this average varies from twenty-three to thirty-six bushels per acre, one specific instance being cited where a man had one hundred acres in corn that would average sixty-five bushels per acre. The final estimate as a whole shows one of the best corn crops the State has produced in several years.

CIRCUIT COURT OPENS

Judge Hardin On The Bench And Jury
Impaneled.

Promptly at eleven o'clock last Monday morning, Sheriff G. T. Ballard, Jr., opened circuit court at the direction of Judge Charles Hardin and immediately the selection of the grand and petit juries was begun, which took up only a short time of the court, as very few of the jurymen summoned, asked to be excused.

As usual Judge Hardin gave impressive instructions to the grand jury, which consumed about thirty minutes. He touched upon the violation of the local option law and said that laws had been passed to make it a serious crime to sell or possess for sale, virus, spirituous or malt liquors and that this law was passed to prevent drunkenness and the crimes that are committed by persons while under the influence of liquor.

The first case called was the commonwealth against Elmer Brewster charged with malicious shooting, which resulted in a hung jury. Two cases against Hayden Compton, for selling liquor unlawfully, the defendant made no plea and he was fined $100 and given a jail sentence of ten days. The case against Bill Brim, for furnishing liquor to a minor, resulted in an acquittal.

The following have been chosen to serve as jurymen during the present term.

Grand Jury.
A. W. Kavanaugh, Foreman, Wm. Lane
S. L. Gibbs, William Scott,
W. T. Walker, Cecil Beatty,
H. S. Gay, J. K. Sutton,

HERE'S HELP FOR LISTLESS FOLKS

New Remedy Restores Zest of Life and Renews Ambition.

HEALTH EXPERT TELLS HOW

Run Down Condition Usually Due to Rapid Eating or Overeating, Says
Man Who Has Set Many Tongues
Wagging With Original Ideas
Thousands Just Half Sick.

"Thousands of persons drag along from morning until night without energy or ambition. They are not sick enough to go to bed, but they lack the zest of life. They are just half sick."

Such was the statement of the Tanlac health expert, who has created widespread comment by his original ideas. He continued:

"You can't have good health if you have poor digestion."

Too Many Bolt Food.

"The stomach is the most important organ in the body and the most abused. The large majority of people do not take sufficient time to eat their food. They give no thought to what foods are good for them. They simply swallow what is convenient and pleasant. The stomach tells quickly when it is abused through overeating or other mistreatment. When it warns, take instant heed or dire results will follow. A disordered stomach brings on headaches. It causes constipation, biliousness, indigestion, nervous disorders and other ills."

Tanlac Most Successful.

"Tanlac is the most successful remedy for stomach ills on the market today. It is composed of roots, barks, herbs and berries gathered in all parts of the world. By its composition it is designed to build strength, create better digestion and more blood, and to strengthen the nervous system through correction of the common disorders of the stomach, liver and mucous membranes. The testimony of your neighbors all around you bears out that it has accomplished this."

Tanlac is being introduced in Lancaster at R. E. McRoberts.

Tanlac may be obtained in the nearby cities. Paint Lick, J. N. Metcalf; Bryantsville, Becker & Ballard; Little Hickman, Collier and Bruner; Berea, S. E. Welch; Stanford, Penny's Drug Store; Junction City, Reynolds and Evans; Richmond, H. L. Perry & Son; Crab Orchard, Lyne Bros.; Burgin, G. T. Schoolfield; Danville, John S. Wells; Lancaster, R. E. FOUR STATES VOTE DRY; TWO DRY LEGISLATURES.

More than one-half of the forty-eight States of the Union have been put into the "dry" column. Those which were added to the list by the election last week, making the total of "dry" states twenty-five, are Michigan, Nebraska, South Dakota, Montana, Utah and Florida. The territory of Alaska has also been added to the "dry" possession of the United States.

The states which voted on the liquor question in which the "dry" forces were defeated, are California and Missouri.

Tanners Claim Another Raise On Hides
Will Push 'Em To That Figure.

The price of hides hopped upward again last Thursday, further intensifying conditions in the American leather industry and lending support to a prediction that within a few months Americans may be paying $15 and $20 for shoes of ordinary quality.

"Country extremes", a well-known grade of hides, were priced at thirty-two cents a pound Thursday, an advance of two cents over the previous marking. September 1st these hides were being sold at twenty-two cents a pound. An official of the National Association of Tanners, which will begin its eighth annual convention in Chicago Thursday, said:

"The American shoe manufacturers are partly to blame for oversteering the market. They did not begin buying until late in the summer and by that time enormous quantities of leather had been contracted for by foreign buyers."

The Russian supply of light skins and hides is entirely cut off. England places embargoes on hides and skins whenever it suits her convenience."

LOOKS LIKE A COUNTY JUDGE.

Hon. Thomas A. Rice was mingling with his friends on county court day in Lancaster who came over from Lincoln county. Mr. Rice is an announced candidate for the Democratic nomination for county judge of his county, subject to the next August primary. Judge Rice tells us that he is in the fight to win and to a fellow on the outside it looks good for him at this time. His friends say that he is far in the lead and will probably land the winner next August. We are not advised, however, as to his chances, but we do know that our Democratic neighbors in Lincoln cannot find a better democrat to lead their ticket next year. Tom Rice is not only a true blue democrat but is a gentleman of ability with a wide business experience and is in every way equipped to look after the fiscal affairs of his county. Here's hoping that he may win the goal of his ambition.

GOOD TRADE

Here Last Monday in Cattle And Mules.

Another bumper crowd was on hand last Monday at being the regular county court day. The town was packed with mules and the pens were well filled with cattle. The latter was in good demand and the pens were cleared before night at what looked to be high prices, although both the seller and the buyer seemed pleased with the trade.

Good choice mare mules were in demand and several changed hands during the day. Some of the best selling two or three during the day so great was the demand for this class.

W. S. Embury sold to Billy Robinson, a nice 4 year old for $250, a six year old for $210, and a yearling for $175. Sam McDowell, of Boyle bought a dandy team of W. L. Lawson, for $475 and a nice one of G. A. Swinebroad for $215. Mr. Swinebroad had paid $200 for her earlier in the day of Ash Arnold. Mr. Swinebroad also bought a nice mare mule of Wils Rogers for $200, making Mr. Rogers a profit of $10, he having just purchased it of Seeve Hill. G. A. Morgan sold one to Wils Rogers for $150 and one to J. W. Elmore, for $165. John M. Duncan a horse mule to J. I. Hamilton for $145. W. T. King, Jr. sold to Richard Gentry, of Boyle a team for $460; L. G. Davidson one to W. B. Burton for $162.50 and to Tom Wallace for $160; Mr. Burton also bought another team for $360.

HART-WEST.

Friends and acquaintances were surprised when they knew Mr. James West had gone to Richmond to claim a bride in the person of Miss Madge Hart, a most estimable and attractive lady. Mr. West is a son of the late Mr. Hansbury West and Mrs. Rebecca West, belonging to one of our oldest and most substantial families. Mr. West and Miss Hart were married this afternoon at the home of the bride in Richmond, Elder C. K. Marshall officiating. After a short bridal trip they will be at home to their friends at the home of Mrs. B. F. Walter.

SCOTT-BRENT.

Miss Ina Scott and Mr. R. E. Brent were united in marriage here last Friday at the Methodist parsonage, Rev. Palmetto, officiating. Miss Scott is the younger daughter of Mr. Ebb Scott of the east end of Garrard, and is an attractive young lady of charming manner. Mr. Brent is a son of Mr. T. A. Brent of Stanford, and is a promising young farmer, well worthy of the prize he won. They will reside on his farm near Stanford. We extend to them our heartiest congratulations.

News Of The Churches.

Rev. R. L. Shirley, pastor of the Deer Park Baptist church of Louisville preached at the local Baptist church here last Sunday morning and evening. Mr. Shirley is looking over the ground here with the prospect of accepting the call here, should such a call be issued. He has had charge of his present church for the past 4½ years and has seen its growth through his own efforts, from a small mission church of 75 members to its present membership of 285 members. Beside during the time he has been with this church, he had built a modern building at a cost of $25,000.

The pulpit committee of the Baptist church will report next Sunday morning at their regular meeting, when all members are requested to be present.

The Ear-Marks of a Good Feed Grinder

You will find every one of them on all

INTERNATIONAL FEED GRINDERS

A strong steel stand prevents wobbling. Two lag screws hold the machine firmly in position. The grinding plates are self-aligning and therefore grind evenly. A spring tension on the grinding plates insures even grinding. A plate shifter lever at the end of the shaft is a safeguard against breakage and makes it a simple matter to clean the plates.

An International feed grinder and an IHC oil engine make an ideal combination. The engine will furnish convenient power for operating the feed grinder, and is especially adaptable for this purpose on account of the variation of the power required in proportion to the kind of grain being ground.

International feed grinders are made in the following types and sizes to meet all requirements:

Type B: 6, 8, and 10-inch—grinds corn on the cob
Type C: 6 and 8-inch—grinds small grains and shelled corn
Type D: 8 and 10-inch—grinds corn in the husk, alfalfa and Kaffir corn in the head

There are other features which you can see for yourself if you will drop in for a demonstration the next time you are in town.

92 YEARS, 92 GUESTS.

November 26th., has become a Red Letter day in the Sanders family, as well as those who are fortunate enough to be numbered as special friends. Mr. James Sanders passed his 92nd. milestone, Sunday. With his happy smiling face, erect figure and hearty hand shake, he greeted each and every one. A remarkable coincidence was that after a register of the guests was made it was found that 92 were present. F. M. Tindler was present and his fitting remarks on this occasion added much to the happiness of Mr. Sanders, as well as those present, as he recalled the childhood days of this boy "92 years young," on down through his life, bestowing on him the benediction of a Christian character and congratulating him in the active Christian lives of his children who can "rise up to call him blessed."

The sumptuous dinner prepared by loving hands was a fitting tribute of their devotion to father and grandfather. Sufficient to say that after 92 guests were bountifully served, many boxes were filled for absent ones.

The promoters of this happy occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Sanders, Mrs. Mary Ann Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. Cronley Broadbush and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Broadbush.

Space will not permit of names of guests. Aside from relatives and friends of this county, were Mr. Frank Pierce of Louisville, Mr. Shelburne of Lexington, Mr. Napoleon Coy and family and Mr. Conrad Coy and family of Madison.

CITY PROPERTY IN GOOD DEMAND. MORE SALES.

The residences of Jas. W. Smith and R. S. Schooler advertised in this paper to sell at public auction, were sold as announced and the bidding was spirited at each sale. The splendid residence of Jas. W. Smith on Richmond street was sold to Mr. J. B. Conn, local merchant here and possession will be given January 1st. The price paid for this property was $4,630. The Schooler residence located on Hill Court was sold to Mr. George Brown, of Preachersville, for $3,950. Mr. Brown will move into this property about the first of the year.

The residence of Mrs. Susan Fisher, which is also advertised in this issue of the Record will take place next Saturday and the one who is fortunate enough to get this place will be lucky. It is very desirably located and is practically new.

Mr. Ed Price showed us a Panama paper containing a letter from Minister Price to President Valdes, in which Mr. Price heartily congratulates President Valdes, on the occasion of Panama's secession from Columbia and entrance into the ranks of free and independent nations. There was an exchange of felicitations as the letter was answered in the most cordial and appreciative manner.

DIRECTORY

Of Kentucky Breeders Of Pure Bred Live Stock

The State Department of Agriculture is preparing a revised edition of a "Directory of Kentucky Breeders of Pure Bred Live Stock," and would appreciate anyone who desires his name to appear in same to write the Department direct.

This little bulletin has proven a popular one and is mailed not only throughout Kentucky but to other states as many requests are continually coming to the Department for same. It has served to bring before the public where the best foundation stock can be found in this State, hence, the great necessity of being accurate as possible in its compilation and it is the Department's desire to omit no name in this revised edition of any breeder of pure bred live stock in the State. If any breeder who has not already been in communication with the Department of Agriculture in regard to this will notify Mat S. Cohen, Commissioner of Agriculture, Frankfort, Ky., giving name, address and kind of pure bred stock he raises, his name will be included in this directory, thus enabling the Department to make a complete and up-to-date revision of same.

Big Tobacco Show At Lexington Delayed By Dry Weather.

The Lexington Burley Tobacco Show will be an event of the Christmas holidays. At a meeting of the executive committee this morning it was postponed from November 23 to December 29 and 30.

This action was forced on the committee by reason of the absence of a season in which tobacco could be prepared for exhibition. The fall has been remarkable in dryness, and practically no stripping has been possible. The uncertainty of casing weather caused the selection of dates a month later which insures a season.

The new dates are Friday and Saturday, and they were fixed after the Lexington Tobacco Board of Trade had taken a meeting at which Friday was held from the calendar of sale days. No sales are held on Saturdays, so the Tobacco Show committee is able to make arrangements for the two days. It is promised that the enforced delay will mean a bigger show at a more auspicious time. Save for the dates, other conditions will remain unchanged, and growers of the entire burley belt will contest for prizes aggregating $1,000.

STORY OF A RANCH

By BARBARA PHIPPS

Inez was a little Mexican girl in southern California. There are many Mexicans there living peaceably under the United States government. They were there when California passed to Uncle Sam after the Mexican war, and they remained there.

Bob Atherton was a young New Yorker who went west to engage in ranching. He had been in the south west a couple of months without seeing any woman except of low degree and proportionately homely, when he met Inez. She was rigged out in Mexican style, with a lot of gay colors and gold lace. Her eyes were very black and her lashes long. Her complexion was olive and her cheeks red.

The meeting occurred when the two were riding over the plains. Inez rode astride; her long black hair hung, a cable, under a man's sombrero.

"Good morning, senorita," said Bob. "Good morning, senor," was the reply.

"Where are you going, senorita?" "Home. I have been out looking for some stray sheep. Have you any tobacco, senor?"

Bob produced tobacco. Inez produced cigarette paper and rolled a cigarette on the flat toppedommel of her saddle.

"May I see you to your home?" asked Bob.

"You may, senor."

That was the beginning of it. The next step was Bob and Inez sitting on a log on the bank of a stream. Bob took her hand in his. He failed to notice that it was short and thick and the skin was rough. He failed also to notice that the cable at her back was composed of very coarse hairs. There was nothing soft or silky about it. Putting one arm around her waist, he kissed her. Perhaps the really most attractive thing about her was the feminine turning of her head and dropping of her eyes.

Ten miles distant from Atherton's ranch was Chambers' ranch. Chambers was an eastern gentleman of wealth who had invested in a ranch, the management of which he delegated to another. About the time that Atherton had become spoons with Inez, Chambers visited his property, bringing with him his wife and their daughter, Clara. Miss Clara had been long for a bit of ranch life and was delighted with it. The morning after her arrival she rode out on horseback with her father, inspecting his flocks. On the way they met Atherton and Inez. There are not so many people in that region as in New York, and when they meet they don't hurry on—they salute and often stop for a chat. Mr. Chambers reined in and asked Atherton some questions as to locations and other matters. Then there was some general conversation, in which Clara joined.

She was the first lady Bob had seen in months. From her he turned his eyes upon Inez. Great heavens! Could this dumpy, coarse little creature be the beauty to whom he had been making love? Inez was conscious of the change. She saw the difference between Miss Chambers and herself and its effect upon her lover. Bringing her skirt down on her horse's haunches, she sent him onward.

Atherton was annoyed. He regretted that he had been caught by the eastern girl in company with the Mexican. He was mortified that Inez should have left him in this absurd manner, evidently jealous. He must either ride after her or let her go her way. He chose the latter course. Not only this, but when the others moved on he moved with them.

That was the end of Atherton's romance. From the time he laid his eyes on Clara Chambers, he saw Inez as she was. He had not the assurance to drop the latter at once. He went to see her and tried to reassure her. He failed and that made matters worse. When a man is passing from one woman to another the surest way to snap their relations is for her to show jealousy. Inez did not improve matters. Bob gradually dropped her.

Naturally he sought the Chambers, who were of his own class, and for the same reason he was welcomed by them. Of course Inez was not ignorant of this.

One day when Bob was out looking after his sheep he saw Clara riding alone. He was about to join her when he saw Inez riding in the opposite direction from Clara. The two girls met, and Bob saw that something was being said between them. Then Inez pointed with her finger. Clara had evidently asked the way somewhere.

"Heavens!" exclaimed Bob in an agonized tone, and, digging his spurs into his horse's flanks, he shot off toward Clara. She was going directly toward a quicksand. She was nearly two miles from Bob and a quarter of a mile from the quicksand. Bob was going like the wind, but before he could reach her her horse began to flounder. By the time he reached the margin of hard ground the animal was half immersed. Clara, who rode sideways, was still untouched by the sand. Bob released his lariat, which he always carried, and, whirling it, dropped the noose over her shoulders. The horse was lost, but the woman was saved.

Neither Atherton nor Miss Chambers said a word to any one about Inez sending her rival over the quicksand. Clara went east within a few days. Bob left his ranch for parts unknown and never saw the Mexican girl again.

A Strange Revelation

By ELINOR MARSH

When John Dowling retired from the police, at a dinner given him he told the following story:

"Most of you will remember the Charnley murder case. After a month had passed and we had given out every day or so that we were on the track of the murderer and would get him sure the public began to lose confidence and the papers were full of scolding remarks about the police. An election for city officers was coming on, and the chief told me one day to drop everything else and work on the Charnley case, intimating that the administration's control depended on my discovering the murderer.

"I did a hard lot of thinking on the problem. Indeed, I began to fear that if I kept on I would run into monomania. I walked the floor nights trying to put this and that together to construct a theory of the murder. So my wife put me in a room by myself where I could prow without waking her or the children.

"One night after the usual brain racket I fell into a slumber. I don't know how long I slept, but I think it was about an hour. Then I woke up and started at seeing a man standing by my bed.

"Come with me," he said, "and I'll put you on to an explanation of the Charnley murder."

"I jumped out of bed, hustled on my clothes, strapped on my revolver—for despite my anxiety to get the information he promised I did not forget that he had come into my house without being admitted, and I was somewhat suspicious of him—and followed him downstairs. A horse and buggy were standing at the door. We climbed into the vehicle, the fellow whipped up the horse, and off we went.

"I was so impatient and curious to know what was coming that I tried to pump it out of him, but his mouth was shut like an oyster, and never a word did he speak from the time we started till we pulled up in front of the house in which Charnley's body had been found the morning after the murder. I knew it was that house, though I didn't know any one of the family of the murdered man. It had been shut up since the tragedy, but now there were lights in every part.

"My companion alighted, led me to the house and, opening the front door for me, bade me enter. What became of him after that I don't know. I didn't see him again, unless one of the persons about whom I am going to tell you was he.

"Hearing voices mingled with sobs upstairs, I ran up and stood in an opening on the second floor, looking into a bedroom through an open door. On a couch lay the figure of a man, but a number of persons were crowding about him so that I could not see his face. A young woman was on her knees beside the couch, hysterically clinging to the body, while another woman was trying to draw her away. A man was standing apart, wringing his hands. I stepped into the room, and the moment he saw me he collapsed. The woman trying to draw the girl away from the body turned and, seeing me, uttered a shriek. Then she dropped on her knees before me, and between her sobs said:

"Don't take him! He made a terrible mistake. Oh, why didn't I confide in him? Let me explain, and when you know how we suffer at what has occurred I am sure you will not add to our misfortune. This is my intimate friend—pointing to the girl beside the couch. 'She was married clandestinely to the man who lies there. The marriage could not be published because her father would disinherit her. I permitted them to meet here. My husband was away and did not know. Hers was here this evening, and she was expected. My husband came home suddenly and found him here with me, waiting for her. Mad with jealousy, without giving us time to explain, he seized a heavy glass ornament and brought it down on the victim's head. Please go away from here and say nothing. We are the only ones who know of the tragedy.'

"I was thinking what I could say to the woman to make it easy for her—for I felt obliged to report the matter—when the lights went out and left me in darkness.

"I was awakened in the morning by my wife in my own room from a heavy sleep or stupor, I don't know which. She could only get me up by telling me I would be late in reporting. I managed to get into my clothes, swallowed a cup of coffee and went to headquarters.

"I thought the matter over that day and the next told the chief that I had failed to find a clew to the Charnley murder and advised him to keep feeding the public with stories of clews till after election and then let the matter drop. Now that I have unburdened myself I wouldn't mind hearing what you think about it."

"Who do you think was the man who took you to the house?" asked one.

"I don't like to say, but my suspicion is he was the murdered man."

"Did anything ever come out about the murder?" asked another.

"Not that I ever heard."

The consensus of opinion was that Dowling had thought so much about the Charnley case that he had dreamed it all.

A few years later a man on his deathbed confessed that he had killed Charnley by mistake through jealousy which was unallayed for.

TO THE TRAVELING PUBLIC.

You are urgently requested to use the entire road and not to drive in the same track all the time as such a procedure will cause the road to rut and, even though it might be only for a small depth, water will run down in the ruts and cause the road to deteriorate. A rut is very hard to repair especially until it gets to be three or four inches deep. The people should realize the fact that they are paying for the road themselves and should try to preserve same because it is their property.

Coughs and Colds Not to Be Neglected

Anyone will realize the seriousness of neglecting a cold if he observes results of such neglect among his acquaintances. How often have you heard, "He caught cold, didn't do anything for it and it turned into"—then some dreaded disease is named!

Ordinary colds yield to prompt treatment at the beginning. That is why every family should be supplied with a reliable cough medicine—one that will heal raw and inflamed surfaces, loosen the phlegm, allay irritation, ease the hoarseness and stop the tickling sensation in the throat that does not permit one to sleep.

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is invaluable for relief of coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough, tickling in throat, tightness or soreness, grippe or bronchial coughs. It contains no harmful ingredients. It is healing, soothing, efficient and pleasing.

IN MEMORIAM.

Nearly a generation ago, when the late Mrs. Nancy Jennings Dunlap and her daughter, Mrs. Eugenia D. Potts, both elegant and gifted women, conducted a school in Lancaster, they gathered about them a coterie of book lovers. Of the circle none was more esteemed than the pupil and young kinswoman of the two ladies, lovely Ida Grant, then in her early teens, of fine mind and poetic temperament.

In this congenial atmosphere the mind of the young girl was stimulated and developed, evincing marked literary aptitude. With the years her talent matured, and Miss Grant's delicate, tender verses and her religious poems, exalting a high and sensitive piety, won immediate recognition.

During a sheltered and happy young womanhood her mind was enriched by an agreeable social life and was ever sensitive and responsive to the glowing and inspiring natures with which her way was blessed.

With the passing years life challenged her with its actualities; she met the challenge courageously, opening, in the prime phrase of the day, a "select school", from the children of her relatives and near friends. To her pupils her attention was conscientiously devoted, and with the daily lesson from the book there went into the forming mind of the pupil an inspiration from her own nature toward true and worthy living.

But the writer's craft was always of chief interest to Miss Grant, and she in time devoted herself to newspaper work exclusively, becoming staff contributor to numbers of city and county papers, handling the matters that came up daily in her reportorial work with a comprehensive and firm mental grasp.

To the intimate group of friends to whom Ida May Grant was very dear, a gentle presence, and distinctive personality of unusual mental endowment is missing.

With the grace of an elder day her life was poised above material conditions and through all weathers of fortune, one found her a cultured, sympathetic, interesting companion, alert to current happenings. Her mind sought wide horizons and in her society one felt at once lifted out of the petty and common place.

With a bent for genealogy, and proved of her own lineage, Miss Grant had a delightful store of facts and anecdotes of early Garrard County days which she had collected for her own pleasure and for literary purposes and perhaps no one was richer in local reminiscences than she.

Loving, self-devoted, valiant in her family life, tender and loyal to her friends, of fine reserves of character, ever womanly withal, in every relationship of life Miss Grant manifested herself a daughter of staunch and gentle stock, in whom was centered strong and scrupulous virtues inherited from an honorable ancestry.

LIVE STOCK NOTES.

A good grooming every day will help to keep the coat short and also keep the horse healthy. Foots are essential for the successful handling of the sheep flock.

With hogs it is not best to crowd the breeding stock to their full capacity. A thrifty growth without too much fat is best for the stock intended for breeders.

The weaning colts should have especially good care as the cold weather comes.

Constantly improve your flock by securing high class pure bred sires and by keeping the best ewe lambs.

Young growing pigs have a variety of food, and it can usually be given to them in shops better than in any other way.

NEED OF GOOD MARES IN HORSE RAISING

We have had enough of the average kind of horse production in this country—in fact, too much of it—says W. L. Blizard of the department of animal husbandry of Oklahoma A. and M. college. Not more than half of the horses produced are of the right type, conformation and quality, says Mr. Blizard. Most horse raisers seem to have sight of the fact that to make a paying proposition of the business they must produce what the market demands and not what they can handle easiest.

It pays much better to keep a few extra good mares and raise carefully a few good foals than it does to keep a lot of cheap horses, without feed enough to give any of them a fair chance. A good mare is worth a barn full of ordinary ones. Invest your money in fewer mares, give the foals

Many of the agricultural colleges are advising farmers to raise horses. Raise good ones is the advice. There is money in good horses, but very little in small and inferior animals. Bad drafters are what the market demands. Percherons, Belgians, Clydes and Shires are all in this class. The stallion shown is a Belgian.

the best of feed and care and you will make more money than you will by raising ten or twelve average foals in the average way.

In selecting breeding stock keep in mind the principle of breeding that "like produces like." The principle applies to the brood mare as well as the stallion. Bad qualities in the mare are as likely to appear in the colt as are bad qualities possessed by the stallion. The influence of the mare in the transmission of qualities to the foal is, as a rule, very much underestimated and sometimes entirely ignored. The farmer who keeps worthless mares for breeding will not be able to compete with his neighbor who keeps only the best brood mares, even though they both use the same stallion. The mare has as much influence upon the colt as the sire. Once in awhile you may get a very fine colt from an inferior mare, but this is very rarely the case, and no one can afford to breed horses for this exceptional chance of getting a good one.

The main burden of the improvement of the horse breeding industry rests upon the mare owner. As long as these owners will patronize inferior, unsound and ill bred stallions because their services are a few dollars less than the well bred, well nurtured stallion with good individuality and with greater capabilities of transmitting good qualities to their offspring little progress can be made in horse breeding.

Farmers raising colts do not realize that the return to them will be five or ten fold or even greater when the colt reaches maturity or is put upon the market if it is sired by a good, pure bred stallion. Profligacy is inherited just as much in horses as in other kinds of stock. Select the prolific strain.

Barn Itch or Ringworm.

For barn itch, which usually appears about the eyes, along the neck and back, scrub well with strong soap-suds and after drying off apply the following: Creolin one ounce, oil of tar one ounce, flowers of sulphur one ounce and lard or vaseline eight ounces. The above should be well mixed together. Treatment should be repeated three times in three weeks. If the eruption is in circular form it may be ringworm, in which case it should be well scrubbed with tincture of iodine. In either case the infection will be carried by the brushes, blankets, etc., and all such should be disinfected with boiling water or strong disinfectant—Orange Judd Farmer.

CHICKEN TALK.

Don't neglect to fix up all the leaky spots in the houses. The rains are again with us and dampness is the foe of fowl life and vigor.

Perches must not be nailed down. Fit them into slots so they can be easily removed for cleaning.

Get the pullets into their winter quarters so that they will become familiar with their environment and commence the winter campaign for producing eggs.

Don't allow animal food (beef scrap, etc.) to lie around exposed to the air; it tends to vitiate its purity. A good plan is to tie it securely in paper sacks until wanted.

The fellow who overcomes difficulties is usually the fellow who makes poultry pay.

AROUND THE DAIRY.

Plan the stables so you can save the liquid manure. It will pay.

Cows should have enough bright clover to distend the digestive tract. Give them all they will eat up clean.

Stable floors and the mangers should be inspected and put in first class condition. Don't leave these things until a big storm comes.

Do not let the cows sleep on the frozen ground. Serious trouble with the udder of the most profitable cow is liable to be the result of such carelessness.

See that the mangers have no holes in the bottom. Such holes will cause the loss of a lot of feed.

PREPARING THE COW FOR WINTER DAIRYING

The manner in which cows are fed and managed during the six to eight weeks' period prior to calving has much to do with their year's production. Improper feeding or failure to give proper rest between lactation periods usually results in a decreased production for the lactation period. For cows that are to freshen during the winter months corn silage makes an excellent substitute for pasture grass, and in summer it should often be a supplement to pasture grass. In fact, it is impractical and unprofitable to attempt to run a dairy farm in the corn belt without corn silage. A ration made up of twenty to thirty pounds of corn silage, all the alfalfa or clover hay they desire and a grain mixture of three parts ground oats, two parts bran and one part meal will prove very satisfactory. The amount of grain per day should be governed by the individual animal. A small quantity of corn may be given to animals thin in flesh, but they should not be crowded, but rather fleshed up slowly. Too large a quantity of corn is likely to have a bad

In production pure bred stock is highly profitable. A pure bred cow which has developed along lines of production will produce from 20 to 40 pounds of butter fat and during that time will produce an offspring worth $100 to $150. The average scrub cow produces about 150 pounds of butter fat, with a calf valued at $15. The cow here shown is a pure bred Holstein.

effect on the system. Timothy hay and cottonseed meal are very undesirable, as they are rather constipating, while laxative feeds are needed at this time.

It is well to reduce the ration slightly just prior to calving, as by so doing the danger of milk fever and after calving troubles are decreased to some extent. It is best to put the cow in a clean, disinfected, well bedded box stall a few days prior to calving. If her bowels are not moving freely, a dose of three-quarters to one pound of epsom salts or one quart of raw linseed oil will prove very beneficial. A grain ration of two parts bran and one part oilmeal is very good at this time.

For a few days after calving the cow's drinking water should be lukewarm. In addition to alfalfa or clover hay and a small quantity of corn silage, she should be fed bran mash or a small allowance of bran, oilmeal and oats. After about three days she may then be placed on more solid food. At least thirty days should be taken in getting her up to full feed, and care should be taken to increase the bulky feeds that are laxative first and the heavy concentrated feeds later.—H. H. Kildee, Chairman Dairy Husbandry Division, University Farm, St. Paul.

Raise Dairy Calves.

The practice of raising his own calves offers the dairyman many and unlimited advantages. It improves the quality and market value of his herd, means increased production of both milk and butter fat and reduces to the minimum the danger of infecting his herd with the many diseases common to this class of live stock, thereby avoiding serious loss which may result from condemnation or death of diseased animals and from decreased production due to low vitality caused by disease. It protects his product against contamination with disease germs which might otherwise jeopardize the health and life of the consuming public.—Indiana Station.

The Calf to Raise.

Pedigree is excellent, but it is not of too much value as high performance in the calf's direct ancestors. Especially should the calf's sire and that sire's dam be highbrows. The calf's dam should be a choice cow, but her sire cannot be too well bred to insure her future. Also, if the calf's granddam and great-granddam on the sire's side were not cows of great natural individual ability, do not waste good money and time on the calf.—Farm Journal.

WHOLE GRAIN RATION NOT GOOD FOR HENS

A hen laying 200 eggs in a year is not at all unusual. A four pound hen laying this number will produce six times her weight in eggs, writes H. L. Kemster in the Western Poultry Journal. To do this she will require from seventy to eighty pounds of feed. For economical production it is necessary that the food be properly selected, that it be fed in correct proportion and in a judicious manner, in order that her digestive organs may be kept in good condition, and that she be fed enough so that she has plenty of surplus for egg production.

The problems of poultry feeding require good judgment and keen observation. Hens fed for egg production should have foods high in the food elements which are found in eggs. Those fed in the fattening pens should have the foods which most economically produce fat. The best ration, then, is the one which supplies most economically the food requirements of the bird for the purpose for which it is kept. It should be remembered that one of the principles of poultry feeding is that the hen cannot do well if fed on a whole grain ration. Not only does a ration of grain fail to furnish the proper food nutrients, but such a ration is difficult for the bird to digest properly. The great fault with the farmer in his poultry feeding is that he attempts to feed a whole grain ration and generally only one grain at that. Such a ration results in poor egg production and also causes digestive disorders and liver and kidney troubles. Complaints of this kind frequently come to the department of poultry husbandry, and a suggested change in the ration has usually resulted in the elimination of the trouble. Efficient digestion demands a combination of whole and ground grains. A ration should consist of grains and ground feeds. Generally speaking, twice as much grain should be consumed as ground feed. This depends, of course, upon the nature of the foods fed.

A quantity of dust or fresh earth stored conveniently, from which a good dusting box three or four feet square can be kept filled, will add greatly to the comfort of the chickens after bad weather comes and will greatly reduce the loose trouble early next spring. The box should be elevated above the floor and placed where the sun can shine in it. Flowers of sulphur mixed in the dust will help kill the vermin. A good type of dust box is shown.

A good ration for egg production can be made with a combination of grains and ground feeds. For grains equal parts by weight of wheat and corn or in the winter time twice as much corn as wheat may be used. For ground feed a mixture of equal parts of bran, shorts and cornmeal may be used. Efficient egg production requires also that this ration be supplemented with either sour milk—all that the birds will drink—or in case sour milk is not available commercial beef scrap. One-fourth of the ground feed should consist of beef scrap in case this is used.

The importance of keeping grit and oyster shell before the birds at all times cannot be overestimated and is especially important during the winter months.

Rocks Popular.

The Barred Rock seems to have the call over all breeds in this country, it being estimated that there are over 60,000 breeders of this stock who practice buying stock or hatching eggs each year with which to add new blood.

THE DOCTORS' PRESCRIPTION FOR A STINGY MAN.

We heard related an account of a prescription given to an exceedingly stingy farmer by a doctor. The farmer took the prescription to the druggist. The druggist told the farmer that he could not fill the prescription and said to the farmer: "If you will read it yourself you will see why." Whereupon the farmer adjusted his glasses and read to his astonishment:

"One hired girl to be taken as soon as you can get her, and kept constantly on hand thereafter."

"A few new dresses that the wives of your hired men wouldn't be ashamed to wear, and a new hat and wrap to replace those you bought her last—thirteen years ago."

"All to be tinged with at least as much daily consideration as you bestow upon your cattle."

DOES BREEDING OF REGISTERED JERSEYS PAY?

A Dairy Industry Here At Home.

The record that Mr. G. B. Swinebroad of this city, who has bred nothing but registered jerseys for the past ten years, has made with his famous herd, should convince the most skeptical that it pays and pays well to handle the pure bred stock only, if milk and butter fat is to be the desired result.

From twelve registered jersey cows, from October 1st 1915 to August 1st 1916, he sold $855.94 worth of cream, beside supplying his family with milk and butter and from the skimmed milk he raised twelve calves from these cows and also 33 pigs until they reached the maximum weight of 100 pounds each.

So methodical is Mr. Swinebroad with his work, that he keeps a daily record of the amount of milk produced by each cow and a representative from the Agricultural College at Lexington tests the milk for butter fat from each cow two days in each month. The best cow in his herd in the ten months made 471.5 pounds of butter and four cows made 1633 pounds of butter in the ten months.

Mr. Swinebroad recently sold a car load of his jersey stock, which were shipped to parties in Georgia, consisting of twenty-two jersey cows, and heifers, all registered, one yearling bull and two grade heifers, for which he received $1940. Always exercising good judgment, Mr. Swinebroad never sells his best, but has kept ten of the "tops" which are now in his large dairy barn and are now giving an average of thirty pounds of milk a day, three of them with first calf and one heifer among them with first calf, gives as high as 38.4 pounds of milk in one day.

His entire herd now consists of his own raising and he expects several of them to make over 600 pounds of butter during the next twelve months.
